217 W. Main Street

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Young Phillip Herrman, who wed a Broadway pony, has found it hard to lose a wife and paraphrasing a vaudeville chestnut has, in fact, discovered it to be almost impossible. Young Herrman was allowed to stroll over to the dusty, silvery roads of Broadway at the tender age of seventeen years and he soon learned that he had annexed a cute little chorister bride with her hair all bobbed and everything.

And now that he has her, Papa Herrman doesn't know what in the world to do with her. He is trying to untie the marital knot in the supreme court. The lad wandered into a gilded cafe in Forty-fifth street one night and met Dorothy Gates who was dallying with a high ball and coyly blowing rings of cigaret smoke in the air. It occurred to Herrman that this indeed must be the life.

Mrs. Herrman lives with Mrs. Raymond Belmont. Mrs. Belmont, who is too statuesque for a pony, is a show girl and not long ago she annexed Raymond Belmont and Papa Belmont is now mailing her a check for a hundred lovely dollars each month. The lawyers tried to make Mrs. Belmont admit that she was coaching her coryphees companion in the art of hooking them when they're young but she burled the barbed wire in tanglement and said she had nothing to do with the marriage. O'Yung Herrman is awfully sorry it all happened but his bride didn't seem pale or wan over the affair.

Long Acre idlers deserted Broadway en masse the other night to help out on the scenic effects of a moving picture fight stunt staged at Tom Sharkey's athletic club. All cherished the secret hope that they might slip their countenances by the camera men for future publication.

Douglas Fairbanks and Jack Deming exchanged the wallops. Terry McGovern officiated in the ring and Joe Humphreys, of course, was the announcer. Fairbanks was supposed to be settling up an insult to a lady friend.

If you've ever read any Alger stories where fight always triumphs over the fellow with a thing, waxed mustache you know the answer. Deming landed one blow, however, on Fairbanks that drew the claret and he was not supposed to do it either and Fairbanks went home just to put out for anything.

The World and American are presenting their own especially plucked war pictures at neighboring theaters and according to the heated editorials that each paper is writing there are only a few persons left in the world to see the films already. A casual reader would think that patrons are groveling on the floor of the lobby for tickets.

John Milner, an actor, has been on the right side of the stock market as much lately that his winnings to date total $125,000. The amount is said not to be in stage money or Lambs club conversation.

The One O'clock Club has been organized by the Forty-second street Four Hundred. It differs from the old Ten o'clock club not only by three hours but because the members will attend session in evening clothes. At the newspapermen's old Ten O'clock club a regular dress shirt would have created a scandal.

One of the aims of the members of the new club is to eat chop-suey and inhale spaghetti. Florenz Ziegfeld is the originator of the scheme of uplift which hitherto has been lacking except at Jack's and the Domino room uptown.

The former meeting place of the members of the One O'clock club was at a water plug near the Times Building but now a clubroom has been fitted up over a theatre.

MAIL ORDERS FOR NERVE-WORTH ARE STILL COMING IN

Burke Drug Store Sends Wonderful Tonic to Customer in Camden, Webster County.

This order, very recently received from Camden, is new proof that the out of town readers of Clarksburg papers are carefully scanning and pinning faith to the Nerve-Worth ads. And why should they not have faith therein? Does not every one of them contain the offer, "Dollar back if Nerve-Worth doesn't help you?" Remember that Nerve-Worth is the best medicine in the whole world for that long list of nervous ills—for indigestion, heart-futter, dizziness, sleeplessness, sick and nervous headache, pains in head, side, back or chest, weakness and weariness, and for run-down conditions in general. The reliable Burke drug store sells Nerve-Worth exclusively in Clarksburg and adds its own guarantee to that given by the maker—"Dollar back if Nerve-Worth doesn't help."—Advertisement.
